

ABSTRACT

This invention provides an electrode for an electrochemical cell in which an active material in an electrode material is a proton-conducting compound, wherein 5 the electrode material comprises a nitrogen-containing heterocyclic compound or a polymer having a unit containing a nitrogen-containing heterocyclic moiety.